

Press Release

TIGA short lists MMP Tax for Games Industry award for the second year running

for immediate release

Publish date: 28 September 2016

MMP Tax the specialist technology tax advisor, has been short-listed by TIGA, the trade body for the Video Games development community, for their award for best tax advice firm.

The short listing recognises the contribution that MMP has made in assisting members of TIGA to claim Video Games Tax Relief (VGTR) and R&D Tax Relief (R&DTR).

MMP, the specialist technology tax consultant, works with development studios, to ensure that their members gain maximum value from the schemes. MMP's experience in assisting with the submission of eligible games to the British Film Institute's cultural test, coupled with their long standing experience of working with HMRC on technology tax reliefs, enables quick and straightforward approval of clients' VGTR claims.

Claims for tax relief or cash credits from eligible game development, require a minimum of detailed cost calculations per game, a cultural test certification from the BFI and tax computations delivered to and approved by HMRC to qualify for the reliefs. Some studios require significant other proofs in order to qualify. MMP has been working with studios since the scheme was introduced and holds a 100% approval record with both the BFI and HMRC.

MMP continues to work closely with TIGA, promoting the Video Games Tax Relief regime to its members.

David Marshall, Director at MMP Tax Limited, commented:

"MMP is chuffed to be recognised through this shortlisting for the best tax firm award. This is such a great industry and it is so important to the UK economy representing one of the UK's biggest export industries".

"MMP is pleased to be supporting TIGA members and proud to be working with the TIGA organisation in promoting the importance of the games industry".
